This introductory course provides a solid framework for learning the roles, rights and responsibilities for a steward as a problem solver. The course encourages activism and challenges participants to broaden their understanding of the labour movement in the context of global solidarity within our communities.

Duty to Accommodate

The duty to accommodate is a growing area of labour law. With an aging population and an increasing awareness of accommodation issues among working people, this course offers a basic understanding of the rights and responsibilities of employees needing accommodation.

Mobilizing the Membership

This course deals with the important issue of recruiting and maintaining local union activists. Discussions focus on how to generate and activate volunteers. The course also looks at how to organize campaigns in our locals and how to get the message out.
